SEATTLE COLLEGE

Vol. 1. No. 12.

Seattle College Week Ending Apr 29, 1933.

PUPILS PLAN PICNIC-PARTY

STUDENT BODY VOTES AGAINST AMENDMENT!

At a turbulent Student Body meeting last Tuesday morning, the Associated Students of Seattle College overwhelmingly rejected an amendment to the constitution, to permit students with Junior scholastic standings to be eligible for the office of Student Body President.

The amendment was introduced by Student Body President Howard Sylvester, at the request of several students who expressed fears that owing to the extremely small Senior Class anticipated for next year, the Student Body would be without a president or would be forced to put up with one who would be unable to devote the necessary time to student activities on account of outside work.

The final vote, reached only after long and fiery debate, clearly revealed the attitude of the student body.

The vote was 19 to leave the Constitution as it is, to 4 to change it.

STUDENT BODY VOTES FOR PICNIC!

The Students of Seattle College last Tuesday, by a narrow margin of votes, approved a date and place for a school picnic.

Lake Wilderness was the place selected and, May 26, Ascension Thursday, the date.

The small sum of 25¢ will be collected from each student to partially defray the costs of lunch and transportation.

The Radio Club announces itself solidly behind the school picnic and will attend 100%. And, if possible, the members intend to have a portable transmitter and receiver along, for experimental tests and general communication.

Practically all the students are acquainted with the manifold advantages of Lake Wilderness for school picnics.

Tennis courts, baseball diamonds, cook stoves, tables, roller coasters, canoes, horse-shoe alloys, confection stands, fish, water

DATE OF ALUMNI BREAKFAST NEARS!

The Alumni Breakfast on May 7 will be the greatest meeting in the history of the organization. But the students must do their part to make it a success.

Alumni leaders have been working night and day to see that all members of their respective classes are in attendance.

All that remains for us students is to do our part and turn out en masse for this memorable event.

wheels, tadpoles, water-to-swim-in, trees, music, sunshine, dressing rooms, perch, fresh milk, trout, fresh air, dogs, cats, ducks, pine needles (in the beans), rowboats, bass (for Hoeschen), sunken gardens, golf courses, firewood, garbage cans, and many other features insure a good time to all.

THINGS I NEVER KNEW TILL NOW

That the famous Pilsener beer does not come from Germany.

That one of the hardest things in the world to photograph (without faking it) is a dish of ice cream.

That Mohammedans have 99 names for their Allah (Allah-oop!)

That most nations in Yurrop sponsor lotteries to boost their revenues.

That the crease down the front of your pants was originated in Victorian days by the manufacturers to facilitate the packing.

That in Spain if a bull is getting the best of a fight, the spectators cheer the animal and chuck bottles at the tor-eador.

That the girl on the Lucky Strike Ads is the future Mrs. Graham McNamee - if she isn't already.

That they speak a different dialect in every Italian City.

That the banana is 85% water.

THE LAST WORD IN BOOK REVIEWS

The English are a hardy race, and when they brew tea, fog or mystery tales there is a particular flavor or you can recognize, like good ale or even Vermont cider.

Dorothy Sayers, in MURDER MUST ADVERTISE, brings back her clever Lord Peter Wimsey, places him in Pym's Advertising Agency and in the best English tradition opens her best bag of tricks for him to track the slayer.

This time Lord Peter gets arrested and also learns the advertising business; he does not, however, fall in love with it or with any of the typists. What we enjoy most in the Sayers stories is the element of good fun through most of the proceedings, which sacrifices nothing of suspense or story structure and makes for a brighter experience all around.

Miss Sayers possesses the three essentials of genius in the novel of detection: plot, plausibility and poise.

Put this one down as mystery insurance. It heads the new list and has received the approval of all the critics.

The book was published by Harcourt, Brace.

SOME CALL IT HUMOR WIT OF THE WEAK

I can't say that I approve of the new beer. I've inhaled so much of it that now I can see two depressions.

The Dean of Princeton said that there is only one sheepskin for every four entering college, so if you don't have pyorrhea you had better start worrying, as you have a better chance of getting that than a diploma.

"Are you hiding from the police?"

"No, I can walk right into any speak-easy in town."

When better cars are built, fathers will go to work on about the same grade of shoe leather.

"So you got that black eye in a scrap with your wife?"

"Yes, home bruise!"

SHAKESPEARE

Actor: "Is that a dagger I see before me?"

Stage Hand (behind curtain): "No, guv'nor, it's the putty knife; we couldn't find the dagger."

Puppy love is the beginning of a dog's life.

WALTER HAMPDEN

PRAISED ✓

During the latter half of last week, Seattle was the Mecca of the Pacific Northwest for all true lovers of the drama and its presentation as given by Walter Hampden. Anyone who has ever seen Mr. Hampden realizes that there is little to be desired after his portrayal either of comic or tragic roles.

Many people have stated that Mr. Hampden's production of "Caponsacchi" has even eclipsed his great work in "Cyrano de Bergerac", and also was far superior to "Hamlet".

This, however, was due mainly to the fact that Mr. Hampden received more support from his cast in "Caponsacchi".

That the rest of his company was weak was admitted by Richard Hays when he said that with the exception of a few, the cast was not brilliant but adequate.

Even so, those who did witness the performances, did not begrudge the price of admission.

Fortunate, indeed, would the general public be, if an effort by Hollywood producers to seduce Mr. Hampden from the stage were successful.

FATHER REIDY

DISAPPOINTED

Despair is gnawing at the vitals of Fr. Reidy. Yes, black despair!

For, the other day, during Psychology period, he expressed his heartfelt disappointment in the school paper because it has, to date, failed to recover Daubenspeck's long lost religion book.

Fr. Reidy is quoted as saying:

"When that marvelous agency for good, 'The Spectator', fails, I feel that all is lost.

"When such a wonderful organ for good, led by its inspired editor, W.F. Jahn (Jr.), fails in the execution of such a noble cause, I feel that the people of our school and of our nation have reached the ultimate in indifference and that no longer may we rejoice in our name as Seattle Collegians and Americans.

"We may expect the destruction and downfall of our nation momentarily.

"I grieve for a lost cause and a lost people."

Olmer: "Say, I was nearly bumped off twice today."

Sifferman: "Once would have been enough."

VACATION

DAZE ✓

Six students of Seattle College were given a "vacation" the week following the Easter holidays.

The students were suspended for playing ball while classes were in session.

And immediately, these six started to make plans for fishing trips and otherwise enjoying themselves during the "holidays".

But the Dean put an end to this by changing the "vacation" from four days to but one day. This to allow the erring students to participate in the mid-quarter examinations.

This suspension was given as a warning to all those students who plan to play ball or participate in other sports on the campus during classes.

We are told by the Dean, that the next time the four day suspension stands.

Mrs. Newlywed: "I don't like the looks of that codfish."

Storekeeper: "Well, if you want looks, why don't you buy a goldfish?"

FISHING (MIS) INFORMATION

With the advent of nice weather comes the query, "Where shall I go fishing?". This depends on what one wishes to catch. Now we do not pretend to know where to get trout, even if we did know we wouldn't tell you. However, in regards to other species of fish, we recommend the following lakes.

Lake Tanwax....very good for Bass
Lake Patterson...likewise
Black Lake.....fair
Offuts Lake....good, very large

Beecher Lake...a mud hole but good
Bass fishing at times.

Lake Cassidy...very good till the natives get organized.

Chub Lake...has some big Bass, but try and get 'em.

There are also many other lakes equally good, but a greater distance from Seattle.

.....by Hoeschen

(Ed. note....The writer is, you can see, 7,000 kilocycles and 14,000 kilocycles very ignorant about trout fishing.)

RADIO CLUB

We heard that.....

Earl Sifferman has been working California stations quite regularly with his new transmitter, and the Club's receiver. It looks like we will have to get the sheriff's riot squad to get the Club's receiver away from him.

A few days ago Carl Robinson received a QSL card from station W6HHN in Inglewood, Calif. For the benefit of the "uninitiated," a QSL card is a postcard acknowledging communication with another station. Ordinarily it is not unusual to "work" a California station, but when you consider the fact that Carl's transmitter has been torn down for almost two months, you can see why he was surprised, nonplussed, and flabbergasted. He has been remaining awake at night trying to figure out whether someone else is illegally using his call-letters or if W6HHN just made a mistake. Hoeschen is cussing his antenna and everything else because he hasn't been able to work any real DX.

Wednesday Afternoon Bill Jahn, with the help of two members rigged up a new Zepp antenna (the kind pictured in the illustration above). This should enable him to work much more DX. Jahn also is the first of the members to work on 40 meters and on 20 meters. That is a frequency of 7,000 kilocycles and 14,000 kilocycles.

LET'S MAKE IT 100% AT THE BIG ALUMNI MEETING SUNDAY MAY 7, 1933!
